PERSONAL.

—This week we had the pleasure of a call from G. E. Luken, Deputy Assessor of Alpine county. He has shaken the dust of that county from his shoes, and, in connection with Constable Grant, will henceforth do a storage and commission business in Bodie, at Ritchie's brick building, corner of Main and Lowe streets. We commend them to the public.

—The matter of the final interment of the late President's remains at Mentor or Hiram having been agitated by some people in his old district, Dr. Robinson has talked with the widow. Mrs. Garfield said if the Trustees had not offered the lot, she would have purchased one in Lake View Cemetery, as she believed, if alive, the late President would have so directed. She thought his wish to be buried there. She added that the question of burial is no longer open, and will not be opened. The Garfield monument fund now aggregates nearly $5,000.

—The German ship Hugo was burned in the South Pacific, August 9th. A life boat with Captain, carpenter and seven men arrived at Chilean, having made 800 miles in nine days. They suffered terribly from want of food and water. Two boats with rest of crew have not been heard from after parting with the captain's boat. One man died in the latter before reaching port. The Hugo was 1,272 tons burden, bound from Newcastle to San Francisco.

—Captain Neeyer, of the German schooner Phoenix, arrived at Panama and reported having discovered an island about 100 miles off Buena Ajua. It is said to be of volcanic origin, about fifty feet high at the highest elevation, and a mile square. The U. S. steamer Alaska, H. M. steamer Kingfisher, and Chilean transport Chili immediately sailed in search.

—There were picked in McEachran's Alta vineyard, Upper Napa Valley, the other day: two bunches of grapes, one of which weighed 7 1/2 pounds and the other, Black Moroccos, 9 1/2. Nothing was connected with either that was not really a part of the bunch. These fine specimens were carefully packed and sent to Cincinnati.

—The family of Samuel Hamilton, of Yuba City, partook rather freely of new almonds the other day, and, except the father, were taken violently ill, and only relieved by vomiting and purging. Their experience should be a warning to others about eating undried almonds.

—The entire crop of hay, about 300 tons belonging to Mrs. Lancaster, Mason Valley, Lyon county, Ne. was burned last week. A hired man had left his vest, in the pocket of which were some matches, lying at the foot of a stack, and a boy drove a wagon over the vest, igniting the matches.

—The Superintendent of the mint at Philadelphia has been authorized to strike memorial medals having heads of Lincoln and Garfield on opposite sides. Smaller medals also authorized, containing head of Garfield on one side and a wreath on the other.

—The City Council of Chicago, 30th ult., changed the name of Sophia street to Garfield Avenue, and the Board of Education decided to name a public school the "Garfield school."

—Superior Judge F. L. Hatch, of Colusa county, died on Wednesday, from injuries received by a fall on the Court House stairway.

—Orson Pratt, the noted Mormon elder died on the 3d, aged 71 years. He leaves a large family.

—Track-laying has been begun on the Utah Central at Lehi. The road will run from Salt Lake to San Francisco.

—Thurlock Weed suggests that honor be paid to Queen Victoria at the Yorktown celebration.

—C. E. Stetson, of San Francisco, is being talked of as a Republican candidate for Governor.

—The debt statements show a decrease of the public debt, during September of $17,483,641.

—Benj. Flint of the old California firm of Flint, Peabody & Co., died at South San Juan on the 4th.

—The Chinese quarter at Modesto has been destroyed by fire.

—General George S. Evans, of San Joaquin, is again a candidate for Governor.

—The Baptist State Convention is in session at Stockton.

—King Kalakana is buying blooded horses at Lexington, Ky.

LETTER FROM NEW MEXICO.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Sept. 18th, 1891.

Mr. Geo. Callahan.

DEAR SIR:

I may not be able to illustrate matters to you as clear as you wish, but I will do as well as possible, considering the short time I have been here. I was mistaken in regard to traveling by Denver, as the Central Pacific does not sell through tickets to any point East, via this place, but takes you from Denver direct East, and I believe the fare to that place is as much as to this, by the Southern Pacific. I paid $65 for second-class, which is about as good as first; and after leaving here both mingle all the same. The expenses from Denver to here would increase at least $25. Having been an unusual amount of rain, Arizona, after passing Tucson, was, as far as the eye could reach, one solid meadow. From Wilcox, Arizona, soldiers accompanied the train to guard against Indians. As we crossed the line into New Mexico, a herd of Antelopes was passed; fire was opened, but without effect. Soon after I saw the trail which the Indians took after killing George Daley. I saw the locality where he was shot; it is in the angle of two two railroads, about forty miles a run west of Denning. His mines are in Lake Valley, 15 or 18 miles from Nut Station, on the Santa Fe railroad. Daley caused his death. He went 15 miles from his place to fight the Indians. In the canyon the Indians, the squaws pushing ahead, hid in the bushes, fired and killed Daley and four others. The command comprised 18 civilians and 18 soldiers. The fight continued until dark, when reinforcements arriving, the Indians retreated. Daley had just finished paying $430,000 for the mines, on account of Geo. C. Roberts, of New York. His death is universally regretted; he was beloved by the people, particularly as he was among the first to open up the mining industries of this district. About fifty miners are at work in his district. After leaving Denning it was dark until we reached Albuquerque, which is rather a good looking town. From there on the country is prairie pretty much to the Santa Fe Junction; from there to here it strongly resembles the foothills of Anasim county; much the same shape; red soil. It is thickly timbered for seventy-five miles, with fine grass all through it.

Las Vegas is located on what appears to be a summit of an elevated country; to the north it is mountainous; to the south timbered hills as far as the eye reaches, and to the east prairies reminding me of Nebraska; to the west and northwest the view is obstructed by low mountains in which are the famous hot springs, about five or six miles from town. The town extends over a great deal of ground; it is built mostly of fine massive buildings; its stores would be a credit to any city in the Union; has a number of very large hotels, among which is a fine railroad hotel; and large depot. The business portion of the town is mostly built of stone, which is the finest material I ever saw. A great many business houses and dwellings are in course of erection. The Plaza Hotel, brick, will cost not less than $40,000. In the north west quarter are cottages—I should call them mansions. A stream, almost a river, of clear water runs through the center of the town; gas is used for illuminating, and the telephone is in all business places. The air is balmy, and the whole as far as one can see is a magnificent panorama. Drinks are 12 1/2 cents, and several dance houses are booming. I do not know to what extent gambling is carried on, as thus far I have only seen one establishment, and that is a magnificent saloon, with billiard hall in basement and bar hall up stairs, and side rooms for cards; the floors are carpeted, and everything indicates wealth, and yet I am told the man game here broke. The streets are swarming with people, vehicles and street cars. Whatever is the full source of all this life, activity and success, no one is fully able to tell me. It certainly is not all local. The railroad pays a great deal of money that is spent here; it is the supplying point for an extensive area of country; there are some twenty sawmills shipping lumber in every direction; some prospecting is going on, and the hot springs create some business. All the trains stop here for refreshments, and a great many wealthy people come here for health, others to roam about and take items. I visited the springs and hills close around. There is an opening in front like a giant gas away, in the center is a place about a quarter mile square, to the left of which is the new hotel, not yet open to the public. It is a frame building of majestic appearance, costing $75,000. The old stone hotel is full of guests. Connected with the place are a number of cottages, and the stream which runs through the town passes in front of the bath-house. The hot water feels slick like elm water, and as everybody says that it is healthy, I say so too.

That roughs are talking the country is false. The people are pleasant and appear to show a more independent spirit than I have seen for years. There are no Californians in business here. I have not seen Chinese working on the railroad, and none are employed in the hotels or families. The people make no fuss about them; they don't want them, and that settles it. I am told that there are six or seven here, but I have not seen them. As a rule colored men are not employed, except a few where they have white girls. I have not seen a half-dozen white waiters. Their wages are about $30 and found. For vegetables, it is claimed that this country surpasses Colorado, and I have seen very nice wheat and corn growing within sight of this town. There is not a sage brush anywhere to be seen, and, judging from high weeds, the soil must be wrong, and the country looks as though susceptible of a deal of improvement. For the past two or three years more rain has fallen than usual. Wages are not high, as will be noted as follows: Carpenters, $2 50 to $3 50 per day; blacksmiths, $3 to $4. I do not know what miners or any other laboring men are getting. You can get a very good meal for 25 cents; some charge by the plate, and hotels charge 75 cents, and 75 for lodgings.

The following are the prices of some of the staple articles at retail: Flour $2 37 1/2 per bag sugar 15 cents, ham 18, bacon 17, butter 40, eggs 35 to 40—lower per case, onions 6, potatoes 2, cabbage 4, syrup $1, tea $1, meal $2 25 per hundred, 2-pound can goods 25, 3-pound 35, coal oil 45, beef 6 to 15, lard, wholesale, 10. Freight average from Chicago 3 cents, and from St. Louis 2 1/2. Lumber, rough, $25; planed $40.

Yours truly,

F. L. DAKES.

MANUAL EDUCATION.

What James T. Fields Would Do Were He a Boy Again.

(From the St. Louis Republic.)

I think I would learn to use my left hand as freely as my right one, so that if anything happened to either of them the other would be all ready to write and "handle things," just as if nothing had occurred. There is no reason in the world why both hands should not be educated alike. A little practice would soon render one set of fingers as expert as the other; and I have known people who never thought, when a thing was to be done, which particular hand ought to do it, but the one nearest the object took hold of it and did the office required.

I would learn the art of using tools of various sorts. I think I would insist on learning some trade, even if I knew there would be no occasion for me to follow it in after life. What a pleasure it is in after life to be able to make something, as the saying is—to construct a new box to hold one's pens and paper; or a pretty cabinet for a sister's library; or to frame a favorite engraving for a Christmas present to a kind, dear mother. What a loss not to know how to mend a chair that refuses to stand up strong, only because it needs a few tacks and a bit of leather here and there. Some of us cannot even drive a nail straight, and should we attempt to saw off an attractive piece of wood, ten to one we should lose a finger in the operation.

It is a pleasant relaxation every day to leave books and studies and work an hour or two in a tool shop; and my friend, who learned and lovable Prof. Oliver Wendell Holmes, finds such a comfort in "mending things," when his active brain needs repose, that he sometimes breaks a piece of furniture on purpose that he may have the relief of putting it together again much better than it was before. He is as good a mechanic as he is a poet; but there is nothing mechanical about his poetry, as you all know who have read his delightful pieces. An English author not long ago said to me: "Prof. Holmes is writing the best English of our times." And I could not help adding: "Yes, and inventing the best stereoscopes, too!"

A boy ought also to be at home in a barn, and learn how to harness a horse, tinker up a wagon, feed the animals and do a hundred useful things, the experience of which may be of special service to him in after life as an explorer or traveler, when unlooked-for emergencies befall him. I have seen an ex-President of the United States, when an old man, descend from his carriage and rearrange buckles and straps about his horses when an accident occurred, while the clumsy coachman stood by in hopeless inactivity, not knowing the best thing to be done. The ex-President told me he had learned about such things on a farm in his boyhood, and he was never at a loss for remedies on the road when the carriage broke down.

If I were a boy again I would learn how to row a boat and handle a sail.

CELLAR FLOORS.

Wooden floors should not be placed in cellars. It is not easy to tell what a cellar floor may conceal from sight, and it should always be remembered that the air of a cellar circulates freely through the house.

A plank cellar floor of a family in a neighboring city had not been taken up for over ten years. The "cellar smell" was strong, notwithstanding almost daily ventilation, even in winter.

On removing the floor there was found beneath it large quantities of sawdust, decomposed to a moist, impalpable powder. The stirring up connected with the removal resulted in several members of the family being taken with severe colds. A cemented floor since given to the cellar has rendered the air of the cellar as pure as that in any room in the house.

A family near the one already mentioned was troubled with constant recurring attacks of sickness. After giving correct ideas of domestic hygiene, the "head of the family" has premises carefully examined, except first found under the L-shaped, disused eastern, the water of which was thickly covered with decayed matter.

The air in the parlor—though was constantly taken that the family be aired—having a very good odor, the expert went into the cellar, which was neat and clean, well-ventilated. Then, having pointed out the man found a soft mass of moldy, damp, and the product of decay. This, at once sought other quarters, and have since enjoyed good health.

There were on their wedding tour, and she said: "Darling, why did you choose me?" "I saw you sweeping the library one day." "Then you chose me because I did not disdain to broom?" "No, but because you could not handle it well."

A GREAT man under the shadow of defeat is taught how precious are the uses of adversity; and, as an oak tree's roots are strengthened by its shadow, so all defeats in a good cause are but resting-places on the road to victory at last.
